STARTING UP A TOURIST ATTRACTION

WHAT IS A TOURIST ATTRACTION?

A tourist attraction is a place of interest where tourists visit, typically for its inherent or exhibited cultural value, historical significance, natural or built beauty or amusement opportunities.

THE BASICS:

1. Make sure you and your family are ready – this industry has a demanding set of skills that will probably change your lifestyle.
2. Do your homework and know your local, state and federal requirements.
3. Have you researched adequate demand and support for your attraction?
4. Is there adequate supporting infrastructure in your region? e.g. hospitality, accommodation and transport services.
5. Ensure that you're appropriately insured as a tourism business.
6. Good tourism businesses are always changing and growing; undertake all relevant research.
7. Be adequately resourced. It will take longer than you think to get things off the ground and to reach break-even, let alone make a profit.
8. Approach the business concept strategically; develop a business plan.

AM I READY TO TAKE THE NEXT STEP?

Running a tourism attraction is definitely not a nine-to-five job. How ready are you to take the next step? Tick () either Yes or No for the following:

	Yes	No
Have you thoroughly researched potential tourism markets and the level of competition in the area you plan to set up your business?
Are you willing to work long hours, as tourism is not a 9 to 5, Monday - Friday industry?
Have you investigated the local, state and federal compliance and legislation areas that could be relevant to your business (including planning laws, insurance etc)?
Do you have the financial resources to cover start up and living costs until your business becomes profitable? Could you survive 2-3 years before making a profit?
Have you written a comprehensive business plan, complete with a marketing plan and projected budget?

If you answered 'No' to any of the questions above, it is recommended that further research is undertaken before commencing your business.

REACHING YOUR DECISION

Once you have researched the above resources, ensure you have covered the following key elements within your business planning process before reaching your decision:

1. Ascertain how much the operation will realistically cost to set up. Consider seeking independent financial advice.
2. Ensure you have adequate funds to both invest in the business and cover operating costs from other income sources or savings until the business breaks-even (typically 2-3 years).
3. Ensure you have researched all relevant legal compliance and legislation your business will be subject to (and their costs!). Speak to your local council and legal representative to be sure.
4. Ensure you have undertaken a thorough business analysis covering elements unique to your attraction. These include comparative and competitive advantages, access to staff and other business requirements, fixed and non-fixed costs and seasonality of trade.
5. Ensure you meet with your local council tourism and/or economic development group to discuss marketing and other support services available in your proposed region. Both for new and existing businesses.

ARE YOU READY TO PROGRESS FURTHER?

1. Have your completed business and marketing plans indicated that you have a viable and profitable business option?

2. Are you and your family willing to undertake such a big investment - financially and mentally!?

MEETING COMPLIANCE AND LEGISLATION REQUIREMENTS

Applying for a planning permit

To set up a new business, undertake land or building development, or change the purpose of a property, your first step is to apply for a planning permit from your local council. The planning permit provides evidence that the council has given you permission to develop your property.

Make an appointment with a council planning officer who will take you through the application process. You will be advised on the zoning of your land and any other local planning conditions that apply to your development.

Do I also need a building permit?

If your development involves construction, demolition, alteration or extension of a building, you will probably need a building permit. This can be issued by either your local council building surveyor or a privately registered building surveyor. The building permit gives the surveyor's permission for building work to go ahead and ensures that building regulations are followed. If you are unsure if you need a building permit, contact either your council building department or a privately registered building surveyor of your choice.

FURTHER LICENCES, REGISTRATIONS AND PERMITS

To register a business or company name: business name registration with Consumer Affairs Victoria, or company name registration with the Australian Securities and Investments Commission.

To register for tax: Tax File Number,

Australian Business Number and GST / PAYG withholding registrations from the Australian Taxation Office.

To play recorded music: music licences from the Australian Performing Rights Association and Phonographic Performance Company of Australia.

Make the job easy – use BLIS

The easiest way to identify the range of licences, registrations and permits you will need is to use the Business Licence Information Service (BLIS).

Go to www.business.vic.gov.au/blis, click 'Search the Victorian Business Licence Information Service (BLIS)', choose the report type you want, and search for 'tourism'. BLIS will create a report of your relevant licences, application forms for those licences and details of the authorities you will need to contact.

INSURING YOUR BUSINESS

As well as insuring your premises and assets, the following additional insurances can be critical for tourism businesses:

1. Public liability of at least $10 million to cover paying customers.
2. Product liability to cover prepared food or other products offered to guests.
3. Motor vehicle insurance if your vehicle is used for business purposes.
4. Personal injury and/or income protection, especially if WorkCover is not applicable to your business. Personal injury and income protection are often taken out by sole traders and partnerships.
